MISS RIVES' TRIUMPH
HEARTS COURAGEOUS
A LOVE STORY OF THE
SIGNING of the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

The Chicago Tribune thinks:
"From the first page to the last there is not a dull moment in the book. Those readers who like in their stories a whirlwind of passion and a swiftly moving plot, will be well pleased with 'Hearts Courageous.'"

The New York Times thinks:
"The power to bring down among us living, breathing men of the past, while preserving their vital relations to their own time—is far rarer than those other gifts of imagination of which Miss Rives has no lack. Louis Armand and Anne Tillotson cannot fail to reach and hold the hearts of the public; a public that will follow their perilous adventures with undying interest."

The Loom of Life

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

AUTHOR OF

"The Redemption of David Corson," Etc.

CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS.

In "The Loom of Life" Dr. Goss has written a powerful book, filled with the poetry and tragedy of life. It tells a novel and impressive story in a style marked by a charming felicity of expression.

The story, which has an epic broadness and strength, is of a young girl, taught to believe in the old Greek myths, who revenges a wrong done to her with life-long persecution. Finally, however, she comes to believe that retribution for wrong-doing belongs to God, and is forced to realize that on earth peace and happiness can be obtained only by forgiving one another's sins. The book shows the same love and sympathy for the many moods of nature which characterizes "The Redemption of David Corson." 12mo, $1.50.

The Long Straight Road

By GEORGE HORTON

Author of "Like Another Helen"

GEORGE HORTON.

In "The Long Straight Road" Mr. Horton has told a story of the lights and shades of life in a great American city, with relentless accuracy, and with an understanding of the motives, ambitions and impulses of typical men and women which stamps the book indelibly with the impress of truth. As a vivid transcript from life, the book makes a strong appeal both to the critic and to "the man in the street." 12mo, $1.50.

20th THOUSAND

By HARRY LEON WILSON. Six Illustrations by O'NEILL LATHAM.

Price, $1.50

A clear, strong, quick-moving novel. A genuine American story of a family that comes out of the West, with all the West's breeziness, independence, humor, and sturdy democracy,—the cardinal native traits. A really great piece of contemporaneous fiction.

DOROTHY SOUTH

32d THOUSAND

By GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON, Author of "A CAROLINA CAVALIER." Six Illustrations by C. D. WILLIAMS. Price, $1.50.

BOOK NEWS FOR MAY says:

"In 'Dorothy South' Mr. Eggleston has created a simple and beautiful romance, full of nobility and of all the finer emotions, with just a slight scattering of sage but smiling philosophy, intercepted by touches here and there of sparkling wit. No such woman character as Dorothy has appeared in fiction for many a long day."

EAGLE BLOOD

By JAMES CREELMAN, Author of "ON THE GREAT HIGHWAY." Illustrated by ROSE CECIL O'NEILL. Price, $1.50.

This is Mr. Creelman's great novel, although as a brilliant writer he is well known throughout the world. His story introduces an Englishman of noble family, who comes to America for the purpose of making his way, not by a marriage for money, but by commercial opportunities. The work is one of great psychological intensity, full of action, tender in its love motif, and world-interesting in its popular discussion of commercialism.

RICHARD GORDON

By ALEXANDER BLACK. Six Illustrations by ERNEST FUHR.

Price, $1.50

This is one of the strongest novels of the day. The scenes are laid in upper New York society, with a dash into Bohemia that is refreshing and vivid. The hero is manly and virile. The heroine is charming, lovable, thoroughly womanly, and essentially feminine. It sparkles with delicious humor and fetching repartee.

By JULIAN RALPH. Six Illustrations by C. F. UNDERWOOD.

Price, $1.50

A striking story of New York social life among carriage people. It has a charming heroine, who occupies the centre of the stage in some brilliant scenes. It shows that a woman of fashion and an heiress can keep unspoiled her sweetness and sincerity of nature.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just ready the Index volume of "The Publishers' Trade List Annual" for 1902. It is an octavo volume of 1114 double column pages and contains 140,000 references to the catalogues of 247 publishers represented in the main volume.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready "Temporal Power," a study in supremacy, albeit not that of the Pope, by Marie Corelli; "The Blood-Tax," a military romance of the present day, with the scene laid in Germany, by Dorothea Gerard; "Tom Tad," tracing Tom's development as a boy and man in the Middle West, including a dramatic incident of the Ohio River flood of '84, by William Henry Venable; "The Defendant," wherein the author, G. K. Chesterton, has a good word to say for latter-day evils, such as penny dreadfuls, publicity, slang, baby-worship, etc.; and "The Founder of Mormonism," a psychological study of Joseph Smith, Junior, his elusive mental conditions and extraordinary life, by I. Woodbridge Riley.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY will publish on the 15th inst. "The Long Straight Road," a story of the lights and shades of life in a great American city, by George Horton, author of "Like Another Helen." They will publish on the 20th inst. "The Loom of Life," a new novel, by Charles Frederic Goss, author of "The Redemption of David Corson," etc. The story is of a young girl, taught to believe in the old Greek myths, who revenges a wrong done to her with life-long persecution. Finally, however, she comes to believe that retribution for wrongdoing belongs to God, and is forced to realize that on earth peace and happiness can be obtained only by forgiving one another's sins. The book shows the same love and sympathy for the many moods of nature which characterizes "The Redemption of David Corson."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 20th inst. a revised and illustrated edition of Alice M. Bacon's "Japanese Girls and Women," with such additions to each chapter as the conditions of this rapidly-changing country have made necessary; "The Right Princess," a story founded on Christian Science, by Clara Louise Burnham; "A Down-renter's Son," by Ruth Hall, the story of an attempt made in New York City sixty years ago to abolish rents; "The Flag on the Hill-top," a story, for boys, of a Southern boy who is placed under the care of a Northern uncle during the Civil War; "Eternalism, a theory of infinite justice," a stimulating argument for the pre-existence of the soul, by Orlando J. Smith; also, "Nathaniel Hawthorne," by Professor George E. Woodberry, a new volume in the American Men of Letters series.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day Henry Norman's important work on "All the Russias," with over 100 illustrations; "King Monbo," by Paul du Chailu, a graphic story for young readers of the author's personal adventures in the romantic region of Equatorial Africa, with illustrations by Victor Perard; "Jeb Hutton," a story for young people of the adventures of a Georgia boy, by James B. Connolly, with illustrations by M. J. Burns; "Shakespeare and Voltaire," by Professor T. R. Lounsberry, who treats of the part played by Voltaire in Shakespearean controversy; "The Incarnation of the Lord," by the Rev. Charles A. Briggs; also, "Human Nature and the Social Order," by Charles Horton Cooley, all of which were fully described by us last week. They have postponed the publication of Richard Harding Davis's new book, "Captain Macklin," until September 20.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Beginning with the issue of July 5, 1902, the titles of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The titles of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. Net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin, of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

†Corelli, Marie. Temporal power: a study in supremacy. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1902. [Ag.] c. 6+559 p. D. cl., $1.50.

It is of the temporal power of kings, and not of Popes, of which Miss Corelli writes. The King of her story, in order to learn the true secret of the discontent of his people, joins a socialistic secret society, falls in love with the queen of the socialists, draws the lot to kill the King, himself, etc.

Crane, Eliz. G. The imperial republic: a drama of the day. N. Y., Grafton Press, [1902.] c. 122 p. D. cl., $1 net.

A drama, cast in the form of the history of stirring political events in an imaginary republic; it is the exponent of a belief in the principles of independence, liberty, and democracy, on which our government is founded, and, from the author's point of view, it paints in startling colors the course of the administration of the republic with regard to expansion.

The results of a woman's desire for fame are pictured in this story. Both Edith Glanville and her husband were entirely happy until she became inspired with literary ambition, and wrote a successful book. The argument of the story is, not that a woman should have no interests outside her home, but that she should not nurse a career at the expense of family life. The scene is in London.

These volumes represent a series of lectures prepared to give, in a simple and condensed form, the development of architectural styles in France, and a history of her great monuments. The subject of French architecture naturally divides itself into two parts: one devoted to the Gothic, and the other to the Renaissance style. Under the first are grouped the great cathedrals, and under the second the palaces and chateaux of France. The later history which associated itself with the great monuments of France is given, and also some account of the peoples whose early migrations founded and moulded the nations. The volumes are profusely illustrated with full-page pictures.

Investigates the elusive mental conditions of a strangely complex character. From materials gathered at Salt Lake City and elsewhere during eight years, there is now presented both Smith's checkered career and his pedigree for five generations. Here certain sources disclose the transmission of erratic tendencies, while his environment and bodily conditions account for the young prophet's visions. The Book of Mormon, as a "Record of the American Indians," is traced to the boy's imaginative gifts and his life on the Western Frontier.

A story for the young of Boston in Colonial days. Anne Hutchinson, condemned for heresy and driven out into the wilderness, is one of the characters; as are also Sir Harry Vane and Governor Wirthrop. The boy and girl friendship of Thomas Savage and Faith Hutchinson develops into love towards the end of the tale.

Sabin, Edwin L. The magic mashie, and other golfish stories. N. Y., A. Wessels Co., 1902. c. 5-210 p. il. D. cl., $1.
Fourteen stories woven around golf incidents.

*Saunders, Margaret Marshall. Beautiful Joe's paradise; or, the Island of brotherly love: a sequel to "Beautiful Joe"; il. by C. Livingston Bull. Bost., L. C. Page & Co., [1902.] [Ag.] c. 2-365 p. il. D. cl., $1.20 net.

Joe's Paradise is filled with animals of all sorts and kinds. Their conversations relative to those they belonged to on earth, with their present occupations and amusements, form the story.

Savage, R. H. Special orders for Commander Leigh: a story of the lower coast of Louisiana. N. Y., Home Publishing Co., [1902.] c. 235 p. 12", cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

†Sayre, Theodore Burt. Tom Moore: an unhistorical romance, founded on certain happenings in the life of Ireland's greatest poet. N. Y., F. A. Stokes Co., [1902.] [S.] c. 12+341 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.50.

This is a romance based on the play of "Tom Moore," by the same author, presented last winter by Andrew Mack. It follows with a certain degree of exactness the incidents in the Irish poet's life, introducing also well-known characters of the day, like Lovelace, Beau Brummell, etc. The poet's love affair with the actress Bessie Dyke forms the plot of the story.

†Scott, Hugh S. ["Henry Seton Merriman," pseud.] The vultures: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1902. c. 5+341 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of intrigue, conspiracy, and exciting adventure among the political factions of the great European nations. One of the scenes is in Russia at the time of the assassination of the Czar. The attachés of the various Foreign Offices play an important part. It is full of dramatic situations, most of which centre around the love interest of the story—the love of a young English diplomatist for the beautiful Countess Wanda of Warsaw.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 13, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"AN AMERICAN RAID ON ENGLISH RARE BOOKS."

THERE is much unreasonable talk, it seems to us, in the English press over the so-called "American raid on English rare books." Anent the recent acquisition by John Pierpont Morgan, of the library partly formed by Morris, a writer in the London Times querulously cries out, "Can nothing be done to stem the continuous and wholesale exportations of rare, early printed and other books and illuminated manuscripts to the United States?" "The drain," he continues, "has been going on for over half a century; within recent years it has reached huge proportions; and now we have the mournful privilege of chronicling the most important single transaction which has occurred, or, perhaps, is likely to occur in connection with this subject." Other writers, in other English journals, rant in much the same fretful spirit, regarding it as a "national calamity" that Americans are beginning to buy more freely than hitherto what the Englishman has been buying for ages from other nations. In some cases it is ungenerously hinted that the vulgar American gains his advantage over his more modest and erudite European competitor by virtue of money, rather than brains, an assertion that is too preposterous to deserve categorical refutation.

The fact is, the European, particularly the Englishman, seems to have lost interest in a matter that is becoming daily of greater importance to the American—namely, the sources of literature as found in original texts and editions. Time was when the Englishman fought for these in the auction market against all comers. Time is when the American holds his own in the market against the whole world—being favored in all things as no nation in modern times has been known to be favored.

Nor is this a victory of a coarse and blatant plutocracy; it is due, rather, to the desire of an aristocracy of intellect and means combined to acquire their share of the literary treasures of the world for their edification and instruction, and for the profit of their fellow men—a fact to which the munificence of Lenox, Brown, Ticknor, Duyckinck, Astor, Ford, Tilden—but why extend the list—amply testify.

The rivalry between the American and his European competitor in most instances is antagonized rather than favored by the foreign bookseller. The victory must therefore be gained through quick and clear perception of the value of what is offered. In many cases literary treasures go begging among English collectors, sometimes for years, before the American collector is permitted to bid for them. Quaritch, to name but one instance, held the Thorold "Psalter" of 1459 for eighteen years before he sold it to Morgan. Dozens of similar instances might be cited.

We do not think that anything can be done to stem the exportation of rare books and manuscripts to the United States, unless a love for rare books is re-awakened in so-called English bibliophiles. We cannot believe that it is lack of money among the English collectors that permits this exportation, but rather apathy towards things that should evoke enthusiastic interest. When this is overcome there may be another story to tell. But even in that case all the American collector asks for is "a fair field and no favor."

THE RELATION OF THE BOOK-SELLER TO THE LIBRARIAN.*

BY CHARLES M. ROE.

IN looking over the announcement of this meeting I noticed that I was put down as a "bookdealer." As that term is not in common use among the members of the trade to which I have the honor of belonging, my curiosity prompted a trip to the dictionary, where I failed to find the word given. The words "deal" and "dealers," however, were there, and from the definitions I received the impression that they referred to transactions and transactors in very ordinary merchandise, and in matters much worse than orinary merchandising. I do not wish you to think of the man who sells books as one who fixes up deals or as the ordinary merchant who gives slight heed to the goods which pass through his hands, but rather as one who appreciates with fine discrimination the intrinsic values each volume possesses which he handles with such care and even affection. I desire, therefore, to enter a gentle protest and to ask that you substitute in your minds the word "seller" for "dealer," as it has a much more satisfactory meaning, being defined as one who disposes of his property to another for a valuable consideration. Now, do not misunderstand this as meaning that the bookseller is getting rich by his transactions. Far from it! It will require many years yet under the new net system to reimburse him for his losses of the past ten years. However, more of this later. But I do wish it understood that the property he disposes of is worth a valuable consideration. I maintain that bookselling is one of the most dignified of the trades, and as engaging in such a business the bookseller is entitled to respect and consideration from the book-reading world. But I wish to protest again at being catalogued even as a bookseller without an explanatory clause such as "some sentiment still left" or "books known by their contents as well as by their size, binding, type, etc." In other words, I wish to be known as a bookman rather than only as a bookdealer or bookseller. For as a bookman I am one of you; for surely there are no more enthusiastic bookmen and bookwomen than librarians and those interested in libraries. As such we meet on common ground and grow enthusiastic over topics of common interest, discussing as brothers and sisters our needs and requirements. On this common ground I meet you to-day as one whose interests are broader than a certain branch of trade. I remember with gratitude the influence of the smallest of small town libraries, administered by the editor of the little weekly sheet, who combined with his editorial duties many another vocation, but who took time with all his cares to direct a small boy to the helpful and entertaining books in the pitifully small collection which served as a public library twenty-five years ago. All honor and praise to those pioneer librarians. But what wonderful developments since! What a glorious present is evidenced by this magnificent historical library building, which is a constant delight to the eye, and which is only one of many erected in the United States in the last few years. What an inspiring outlook for the years to come! I fully concur with Mr. Melvil Dewey in his plea for a wider and heartier recognition of the equal necessity of the public library with the public school.

The world of letters, and I suppose librarians and booksellers may claim residence in at least the outskirts of that favored realm, is an interesting place in which to live, for various reasons, among which may be reckoned the various controversies which arise from time to time.

The spice of variety is with us in the tilts between critic and author, author and publisher, publisher and bookseller, and now between bookseller and librarian. As a bookseller for fifteen years and a friend and acquaintance of librarians for over twenty, I stand to-day as a mediator between the belligerents, clasping the hands of both parties and striving to bring them if possible to a better understanding. By these words I do not wish to be understood as admitting that there is a serious breach between these members of the book trade. Oh, no! It is only a small family jar, which, when the heat of the occasion has passed away, will be satisfactorily settled. The cause of the controversy, like that of many another, is a "haggling over prices," to use plain words. The pocketbook is more sensitive than any part of the actual anatomy.

Our great unselfish promoters of public welfare, the daily papers, understand this fully, and so constantly bid for public favor by pointing out periodically some commercial octopus which is plotting to despoil the nation. The "Book Trust" is one of the latest of these dread animals discovered by enterprising Chicago journalism, and, horrible to relate, it is one of the worst of its kind, for it has two heads. Under date of August 6 the Chicago Tribune presents six columns of sensational sentences under the heading "The Book Trade has Duplicate Trust." The reading of this article by one acquainted with the conditions which have existed in the publishing and bookselling business for the past twenty years, reveals an utter lack of the knowledge necessary to intelligently present the subject. The reporter who concocted it was, of course, a professional builder of sensational articles, and knew how to meet the wishes of the editor and the desires of his readers. While he raved and ranted about the public having to pay more for its books he gave no inkling of how much more nor why it was necessary to come to some agreement about prices. A full and fair discussion of the subject would not have served the ends of this champion of the people's pocketbook. It may be noted in passing that publishers and booksellers are wondering why the Tribune should present only one side of the subject in a way that is apt to do harm to the book trade generally, when its advertising columns are patronized so generously by bookmakers and sellers of books. It may also be asked why it chooses to call the American Publishers' Association and the American Booksellers' Association a "trust," when it is a well-known fact that these associations are not combinations for monopoly, but formed solely for conserving legitimate profits in a business which has been well-nigh ruined by indiscriminate price cutting. The generally accepted definition of a trust is "a combination in restraint of trade." No such purpose has been in the minds of either publisher or bookseller. On the contrary, this form of combination or co-operation is beneficent, inasmuch as it seeks to create and foster bookstores everywhere. It does not purport to crush out new organizations in its line of business, but only seeks to rectify palpably unfair and unreasonable business methods. Every one must admit that this is altogether different from what is commonly known as a "trust" or monopoly which is organized for the express purpose of crushing all competitors and securing all the business in its line for itself. On the contrary, the booksellers' and publishers' associations exist not for their own corporate aggrandizement, but in order that each individual member, be he never so small, may have an equal chance to secure a reasonable profit. This is a true community of interest, and should be welcomed and encouraged by every fair-minded person. The fact that it is a double combination, as the Tribune says, is wholly in its favor, for one body will act as a check upon the other, should either evince a desire to dip into the public pocketbook for more than a suitable profit. If the Tribune had discussed the subject fairly something like the following would have appeared: "A time-honored trade profession more carefully organized." The public will have to pay somewhat more for its books, but can well afford to do so in consideration of the valuable public service rendered by bookstores and booksellers as well as by book publishers in printing and selling annually thousands of informing and entertaining books. For many years this service has been rendered by the bookseller without sufficient remuneration. Three reasons contributed to this state of affairs:

First: The unfortunate custom of giving discounts to certain classes was gradually extended until it included the entire bookbuying public, and increased from 10 per cent. to 25 per cent., and even 30 per cent., leaving the bookseller scarce enough to pay expenses.

Second: The department store seized upon the popular books for advertising purposes, selling them for a few cents above cost, and often for cost or less, giving the public the impression that the regular bookseller was charging exorbitant prices and making enormous profits, and so alienating the public from him.

Third: Libraries were securing their books at about cost, in some instances at cost, the bookseller losing his expenses.

To save the trade from complete disintegration from these causes the publishers have joined hands with the booksellers in a double organization for the proper protection of their combined interests, in order that the business of selling books may be placed on a profitable basis. This does not mean that books will be published at exorbitant prices, nor that the public will pay much above 10 per cent. more for its books. Books which under the old system sold for $1.12 and $1.18 will now cost $1.20 or $1.25. The bookbuying public, which for the most part is either engaged in varying commercial enterprises that return a good profit or receiving good fees for professional services, will be glad, we are sure, to pay this small extra amount for its literary entertainment with the knowledge that the extra 10 per cent. or so makes it possible for the man who pursues a trade which is acknowledged to be a difficult one to secure a fair profit and have the satisfaction of making something more than a mere living.

Such a statement as this would have caused much more of a sensation than the attack on the book trade to which we have referred, and would have reflected much more credit on the management of a paper to whose prosperity both publishers and booksellers have contributed so generously.

We have gone somewhat afield, however, and must return to a discussion of the effect on librarians and libraries of the new system of net prices. Every one present may not be fully acquainted with the history of this controversy. In a nutshell the situation is this: Until May, 1901, librarians were accustomed to buy books for their libraries, themselves and their friends at one-third off publishers' prices, and very often at even better rates. On the date above named the rule of the American Publishers' Association that booksellers should allow librarians only 10 per cent. from the prices of all new net books went into effect. As soon as librarians saw that under this rule they would pay more for books protests began to be made from all parts of the country. The publishers were urged to increase the discount to 25 per cent. The booksellers protested at this, as it would make the library trade as unprofitable as it was before. To date the Publishers' Association has taken no action in the matter.

In presenting the booksellers' side first, I have not forgotten the librarian's way of looking at the question, and do not blame him for being somewhat disturbed and anxious and inclined to resent the new order of things which cuts down the number of books possible for him to purchase with a given sum of money. He is very naturally thinking of his own beloved library with still some empty shelves and wall space which he longs to see filled, and an ever increasing number of readers whose demands for certain classes of books he cannot meet. He is rightly jealous of the interests of his library, and puts forth every effort to make his appropriation, all too small as it is, buy as many books as it possibly can. I honor him in his fine enthusiasm and in his faithful discharge of a public duty; but I am here to-day to remind him that there are other citizens whose interests should be considered as well as those of his dear library patrons—citizens who have just as much right to the happiness which comes through the securing a reasonable profit as the architect or the contractor of the library building and even the librarian himself with his salary. [I'm sure the librarian would wish to be counted among those who would be glad to know that the bookseller was making a reasonable profit instead of conducting a losing and disheartening business, and knowing the facts as we have presented them he would be the last to continue to petition the publishers to supply him with books at a discount which would allow no profit whatever to the worthy fellow citizen and fellow-bookman who is risking his capital in, and giving his time to, a business which is not greatly profitable at the best, and which, like the library itself, is of a distinct public benefit.] It may very properly be asked why the most necessary part of the entire library outfit should be supplied at no profit to the seller. The architect and contractor of the library building make a profit, and rightly, too. The Library Bureau, or some other supply house, makes a profit on the fittings supplied, and the librarian receives a reasonable salary as he should. Then why not include the bookseller among those who are getting a reasonable profit for the expenditure of public funds. The new system of net prices will make it possible for him to make a small profit—not by any means what it should be, but vastly better than none at all, as formerly; but it would not be possible to increase the 10 per cent. discount to 25 per cent., as the librarians petition, and make anything above bare expenses, if that.

I well remember a conversation of several years ago with a gentleman whom many of you know and esteem highly. He had been a librarian, and had purchased books for an entire state system of libraries. At that time he possessed the idea that much money was made in selling books to libraries. Unfortunately for him this impression led him to embark in the business of retailing books and supplying libraries. My conversation was after his failure in this business. He was telling me his surprise, on receiving his bills from the publisher and deducting their amount from the price he was compelled to allow libraries, at the ridiculously small margin left to pay rent, insurance, losses on dead stock, interest on capital invested, light, clerk hire, incidental expenses, and last but not least, his own profit. He is now engaged in farming, which he finds a much more remunerative employment and much less harrowing to the nerves.

During the past year, even with the help of the net price system, one of the largest houses supplying libraries with books, I am told on good authority, declared a dividend of only 2 per cent. By this it would hardly appear that the public pocketbook had been mulcted very badly. And in startling contrast to this poor showing we again call attention to that watchdog of the people's pocketbook, the Chicago Tribune, which has been charging $20 per inch for advertising space in the number celebrating the completion of its magnificent new building. The Tribune may say their space is well worth this price to the advertiser, and there is a bare possibility of its being so; but the immense profits that paper has always made would indicate that it was taxing the public pretty heavily. Consistency is a word evidently unknown to its management. Instead of being a true watchdog it would appear to be more of a dog in the manger. Declaring, as it does, each year enormous dividends on its capital stock it could well afford to be generous, and lend its influence for the building up of a business somewhat allied to its own rather than misrepresenting it as a "double-headed monster" stealthily plotting to rob the public purse. I have made the foregoing statements in regard to the unprofitableness of the library business advisedly and with deliberation, not for commercial effect, but from honest conviction and from facts gained by long experience in bookselling, and they would not be changed in any particular if given under oath.

'Tis well said that excessive devotion to the material is the evil of our epoch, and some may be inclined to think that the plea which I have just made for a larger profit for the bookseller is in keeping with the spirit of the times. No one, however, who is acquainted with the history of bookselling for the past decade will think of accusing me of mercenary motives. It is well known that clever merchandisers have been wont to sneer at the sentiment of the bookseller who through sheer love of books has been irresistibly tied to a business which only just pays expenses and allows him a mere pittance upon which to live. I do not, however, ask for a reasonable profit for the profit alone, but largely on account of the principle involved. I believe that it is morally wrong to sell goods without profit. The influence on men in such a business is serious, and no one with the common weal at heart would wish to profit by the disheartenment of another in this way. I wish to know that the various tradesmen with whom I deal are making a reasonable profit on what I buy of them, and it would disturb me seriously to learn that they were losing money or only making expenses on merchandise sold me. The old and bad method of heartless competition must give way to the new and better method of proper combination and co-operation.

I do not agree with Mr. Melvil Dewey in his contention that as the public school has supplanted the private school, so the public library will supplant the circulating library and the small bookstore as well. In the first place, the public school has not supplanted the private school. Changing conditions made it appear to do so; but in the end there was room for both, and to-day the private school thrives as well as ever. So with libraries. The great increase of wealth and of general knowledge assures a steadily increasing body of readers who will make it possible and profitable for the private circulating library and the bookseller to exist along with the greatest possible number of public libraries. No one need be pessimistic. Changes will happen continually, that will jostle us somewhat but not overthrow us. A little readjustment is necessary—a seeking of new methods of cultivating our own special field rather than a loss of temper or a resort to frantic appeals and extreme statements.

The bookseller always has been and always should be the most logical and natural channel through which publishers distribute books to libraries. He has a training and facilities which make it advantageous to both publisher and librarian to have him act as intermediary. He is willing to spend time and money to look up books which he alone knows how to secure, and to advise about the best of the many editions and bindings, and to risk a goodly sum of money in carrying a large stock of books that publishers may be represented and that librarians may have opportunity for selection near at hand; but for all this he very naturally and justly wishes a fair compensation. This the old method would not give, and the new will give only in scant measure. In view of these facts, then, would it not be well for the librarian to desist from presenting further resolutions to the publishers asking for larger discounts and turn their attention rather to securing larger appropriations for the purchase of books? Of money there is a plenty, and there should be little difficulty in securing enough to give an ample stock of books to every library in the land, unless, indeed, public benefactors are more anxious to be represented by beautiful and striking library buildings which stand all day in the eyes of the people rather than by the more obscure, but in the end more powerful witnesses to their generosity which stand silent on the shelves within. I have faith enough in the good nature and the common sense of librarians and booksellers generally to look forward to the day when both will be working harmoniously, each for the good of the other and for the benefit of the greatest book-reading and bookbuying public the world has ever known—the American people, which they have the extreme good fortune and exalted privilege of serving.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR FREDERICK AUGUSTUS ABEL, a well-known chemist and writer on scientific subjects, died September 8, in London, where he was born in 1826. His published works are: "The Modern History of Gunpowder," "Gun Cotton," "On Explosive Agents," "Researches in Explosives," and "Electricity Applied to Explosive Purposes." He was joint author, with Colonel Bloxam, of a "Handbook of Chemistry."

FRANK TOUSEY, the publisher, of No. 24 Union Square, East, New York, died at his apartments in the Van Corlear, No. 201 West Fifty-fifth Street. He had been ill from pleurisy for about three weeks. Mr. Tousey, who was a nephew of the late Sinclair Tousey, president of the American News Company, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 24, 1853. He started in business when he was nineteen with the late Norman L. Munro. He left Munro after about ten years, and began a publishing business of his own, with which his brother Sinclair later became associated. He had a varied experience. He founded Judge, and was a publisher of many children's periodicals and books. Of late years his company published many popular songs.

PHILIP JAMES BAILEY, chiefly known to fame as the author of "Festus," died at Nottingham, Eng., September 6. He was the son of Thomas Bailey, author of "Annals of Notts," and was born at Nottingham in 1816. He studied at the University of Glasgow, and in 1833 began the study of law, being admitted to the bar in 1840. "Festus" was planned in 1836, and published in 1839. It passed through eleven editions in England and upward of thirty in America. Since the original work was published there have been incorporated with it "The Angel World" (1850), "The Mystic" (1855) and "The Universal Hymn" (1867). He also wrote "The Age," a satire, which was published in 1858, and a prose work on the international policy of the great powers.

WILLIAM ALLEN BUTLER, known to the present generation as the greatest living authority on maritime law and to former generations as the author of "Nothing to Wear," and other poems, died suddenly at his home, Round Oak, Yonkers, N. Y., September 9. He was born in Albany, N. Y., February 20, 1825, and was graduated from the University of New York in 1843. In November, 1857, "Nothing to Wear" appeared anonymously in Harper's Monthly Magazine. An impostor claimed it for his work, and Mr. Butler in self-defense revealed himself as its author. It was published in book form by G. W. Carleton and had a wide sale here and in England. He also wrote "The Colonel's Club," "Cities of Art and Early Artists," "The Future," "Barnum's Parnassus," "General Average," "Two Millions," "The Bible by Itself," "Mrs. Limber's Raffle," "Domesticus," "Out of the Way Places in Europe," and a history of the revision of the statutes of New York, with biographical sketches of the revisers.

PROFESSOR RUDOLF VIRCHOW, the world-renowned pathologist, died in Berlin, September 5. Professor Virchow was born at Schivelbein, in Pomerania, Prussia, October 13, 1821. He obtained his degree as doctor in Berlin. From 1849 to 1856 he held a professorship in the Pathological Academy at Würzburg. In 1856 he returned to Berlin, where he continued to live until the end. Fully half a century ago Professor Virchow started scientific medicine on new courses by his investigations and discoveries in cellular pathology, and the researches and teachings in his laboratory were kept up until two months ago, when he was disabled by an accident that was the indirect cause of his death. Though indefatigable in his scientific and university labors, he devoted forty years of his life to parliamentary labors as a member of the Berlin Municipal Council, and representative in the Prussian Landtag and in the German Reichsrath. In 1852 Virchow founded his "Archives for Pathological Anatomy and Physiology and for Clinical Medicine," and after hesitating five years published in the fourth volume his introduction to or preparation for his "Cellular Pathology," the work which was to make him famous for all time. Three years later in the eighth volume he presented a further contribution to this subject, and the completed work was published in 1858. He wrote a "Handbook of Special Pathology and Therapeutics," instituted "Annual Reports of Advances in Medicine Throughout the World," wrote three volumes on "Morbid Tumors," and published among other things "Collection of Contributions to Scientific Medicine," "The Movement in Favor of Unity in Scientific Medicine," "The Physical and Chemical Properties," "The Metamorphosis," "Origin and the Coagulation of Fibrine," "White Blood Corpuscles," "Inflammation of Blood Vessels," "Contributions to the Pathology of the Skull and Brain," "Granular Appearance of the Walls of Cerebral Ventricles," "Cretinism," "Development of Cretinism," "Cranial Deformities," and "New Formation of Gray Cerebral Substance." Besides these he wrote a number of works on archaeological and other subjects.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS. THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE membership of the American Publishers' Association is growing steadily. Recently The Jamieson-Higgins Co., of Chicago; Clinton S. Zimmerman, The Baker & Taylor Co., John Wiley & Sons, D. Van Nostrand Co. and Thomas Whittaker, all of New York; also, W. A. Wilde Co. and Herbert B. Turner & Co., of Boston, were admitted. A number of other applications are on file, among the number one from Laird & Lee, of Chicago, and several from Bible publishing houses. Presently it will be unpopular for a publisher to remain outside of the Association—if not unhealthy.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE Booksellers' League will resume its monthly dinners at the rooms of the Aldine Association, New York City, on the evening of October 8. It has not seemed desirable to begin this month, because the vacation terms of quite a number of the members extend into the second and third weeks of September.

The committee has promises of addresses from Francis H. Nichols, author of "Through Hidden Shensi," who will speak on "Shensi, the Hidden Province of China." Robert Pitcher Woodward, author of "On a Donkey's Hurricane Deck," will tell of the experiences gathered on a "Four Thousand Mile Donkey Trip."

The beginning of the fall season would seem a favorable one for intending candidates to apply for membership. As we have often pointed out, the League is doing splendid work, and gives in material and intellectual entertainment full measure for every dollar received in dues.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

AFTER his retirement Mr. Andrew D. White will settle in Ithaca, N. Y. He is now at work on a book of reminiscences, describing his experiences as Minister at Berlin in 1879-81, as Minister at St. Petersburg in 1892-94, and as Ambassador to Germany from 1897 to his retirement in November next. He is also at work on a volume describing the new Germany of the last decade.

HOWARD PYLE is just finishing work on a book, "The Story of King Arthur," which is a companion volume to the author's popular "Robin Hood." It will appear first as a serial in St. Nicholas magazine very fully illustrated by the artist-author. It is said to be no mere recounting of old stories, but an entirely new series of picturesque, romantic tales woven about the old legend of King Arthur.

M. LÉON DAUDET emphatically denies that M. Hugues Le Roux wrote, or even collaborated with his father in the writing of "La Belle Nivernaise." He says that when M. Le Roux first made his claim it brought down upon him "a stern rebuke from my father," whereupon M. Le Roux apologized and promised to be good. M. Le Roux has doubtless told the story so often that he has actually come to believe it.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CHARLES R. STENGER, formerly with the Emery Bird Thayer Co., is now in charge of the book department of the Simpson Crawford Co.

JOHN LANE has secured the American rights to Zola's forthcoming novel, "Truth," translated by Ernest Vizetelly. It will not be published, however, until after Christmas.

THE WRIGHT PUBLISHING CO., Akron, O., have brought out a Beautiful Gem Series, consisting of biographical and historical cards, each bearing a portrait or picture of the subject, a facsimile autograph, if of a person, and a biographical or historical sketch.

THE INDUSTRIAL PUBLICATION COMPANY, New York City, publish "The Shakespeare Cyclopaedia and New Glossary," by John Phinn, intended as a supplement to all the ordinary editions of Shakespeare's works. Edward Dowden furnishes the introduction.

WILLIAM S. LORD, Evanston, Ill., has in press "The Romance of an Old Fool," by Roswell Field, which will continue to the many who have a liking for the work of the genial satirist the happy impression made by his grave drolleries in "The Passing of Mother's Portrait."

THE BLUE SKY PRESS, 4732 Kenwood Avenue, Chicago, announce a special edition of Robert Browning's "In a Balcony," with an introduction by Laura McAdoo Triggs, and a title-page, headings and other designs by W. A. Dwiggins and F. W. Goudy. There will be 400 copies on Van Gelder paper and 15 copies on imperial Japan paper.

A. WESSLETS COMPANY will publish shortly in the "Story of" Series "The Story of Fish Life," by W. P. Pycraft, and "The Story of Euclid," by W. B. Frankland; also, a life of "Captain John Brown," by John Newton, who describes the stirring scenes of 1855 and 1859, in which the hero of Harper's Ferry so prominently figures in his contest against the pro-slavery party.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just brought a new book by J. Brierly, entitled "Ourselves and the Universe," studies in life and religion. It may not be generally known that Mr. Brierly is a retired clergyman who frequently contributes to the London Christian World over the initials "J. B." Mr. Whittaker has also just published a volume by Dr. John Marshall Lang, entitled "The Church and its Social Mission."

GODFREY A. S. WIENERS, who has succeeded to the publishing business of William Doxey, has in preparation "The Wisdom of a Kempis," "The Wisdom of Schopenhauer," Rossetti's "The House of Life," Lang's "Ballads in Blue China," and a limited edition of the "Rubāiyāt," with decorative borders, by Louis B. Coler. The first three books mentioned above contain introductions by Howard V. Sutherland.

J. C. L. CLARK, Lancaster, Mass., has just published a neatly-printed monograph by Mrs. Annie M. L. Clark, entitled "The Alcotts in Harvard." Mrs. Clark gives an interesting account of A. Bronson Alcott's vegetarian community at Harvard, and reminiscences of Louise Alcott and her sisters during the residence of the family at Still River after the collapse of the community. The book contains seven views and four reproductions.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish next week a treatise upon the "Law of Copyright," by E. J. MacGillivray. This work is upon the law of copyright in Great Britain and in the British Possessions and in the United States. It contains a full appendix of all acts of parliament, international conventions, orders in council, treasury minutes and acts of congress in full. They will also bring out with the above "The Roadmender," by Michael Fairless, author of "The Gathering of Brother Hilarious."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have ready this week a romance of the Northwest, entitled "Two Wilderness Voyagers," a true story of Indian life, by Franklin Welles Calkins. In this book Mr. Calkins writes from his own rich experiences, than which there are none more thrilling, and adding the rare gift of the art of the telling, has produced a realistic, thrilling tale of Indian life. He graphically depicts the exciting adventures of escape and wandering, the drama of the great wilderness.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish to-day "On Fortune's Road," a collection of realistic stories of Chicago business life, by Will Payne, with a number of illustrations; "A Captive of the Roman Eagles," a historical novel by Felix Dahn, dealing with the conflicts between Germany and Rome, translated by Mary J. Safford; also, two new books on music by George P. Upton—"Musical Pastels," essays on quaint and curious musical subjects, and "The Standard Light Operas, their plots and their music."

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish on September 20 "Love and the Soul Hunters," by John Oliver Hobbes (Mrs. Craigie), which this artistic author considers the effort of her life; and "The Needle's Eye," by Mrs. Florence Morse Kingsley, a story of modern American life with scenes alternating between vine covered cottages, humble farm-houses, city palaces and the poorest tenements of the slums. The author is always dramatic and humorous, and it is said the latest story will make people laugh, cry and think.

THE Ellwanger family will be represented in Doubleday, Page & Co.'s list this fall by books from George H. and W. D. Ellwanger, both well known in the literary world. George H. Ellwanger's book will be entitled "The Pleasures of the Table," and will deal with the subject chiefly in a historical way. W. D. Ellwanger's volume will be entitled "A Summer Snowflake and Other Poems," which will have illustrations by Wenzell and others. A third brother, H. B. Ellwanger, was the author of an authoritative treatise on the rose.

HENRY HOLT & Co. are about to bring out a new edition of one of their nine volumes devoted to Goethe, being "Egmont," with introduction, notes and bibliography by Professor Robert Waller Deering, of the Western Reserve University, whose editing of "Wilhelm Tell" won such general and hearty approval. They will also issue selected narratives from Wiedemann's "Biblische Geschichten," which most happily combine simplicity with impressiveness. The book will be edited by Professor Lewis A. Rhoades, of the University of Illinois.

THE LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY, of Boston, have just brought out Julian Ralph's brilliant novel of fashionable New York life, entitled "The Millionaire." Mr. Ralph's wide experience with men and things, joined with his picturesque style and skill in narrative has gone to make this one of the notable novels of the early fall. The story gives vivid pictures both of country house and city life, and moves briskly along to a satisfactory end. Mr. Ralph has found a novel motive in depicting a young heiress surrounded by frivolity and fashion, and yet preserving her generous-hearted young womanhood for higher purposes of life.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, to meet the very strong demand for a less expensive edition, have just brought out Edith Wharton's successful story, "The Valley of Decision," in one volume; "Aspects of Fiction and Other Ventures in Criticism," by Brander Matthews; a new edition of "Bob," by Sidney Lanier, with many illustrations in full color, by A. R. Dugmore; "Bob and His Gun," by William Alexander Linn; "The Mid-Eighteenth Century," by J. H. Millar; the concluding volumes of the pocket edition of George Meredith's novels; also, "The Historical Novels of Bulwer Lytton," in six volumes, all fully described by us last week.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish shortly "The King's Agent," a romance of the days of King William and Queen Mary, by Arthur Patterson. They have in preparation a new novel by J. A. Stewart, entitled "A Son of Gad." The nature of this story is indicated by the passage from the Bible—"a troop shall overcome him, but he shall overcome at last." The characters are British and American, and the development of the story illustrates the process of Americanizing England and Anglicizing America. They will add in the fall to their Artistic Crafts Series "Cabinet-making and Designing," by C. Spooner, and "Silverwork and Jewelry," by H. Wilson, both elaborately illustrated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "Fame for a Woman, or, Splendid Mourning," the tale of a misguided young wife who leaves domestic happiness because she is persuaded by Cranston Metcalfe that she can "write;" "As Seen from the Ranks, a boy in the Civil War," by Charles E. Benton of the One Hundred and Fiftieth New York State Volunteers; "Italian Life in Town and Country," by Luigi Villari, son of Prof. Villari of Florence; "Industrial Conciliation," the report of the proceedings of the conference held under the auspices of the National Civic Federation, at the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation in New York, Dec. 16 and 17, 1901, in The Questions of the Day Series; also, "Typhoon," a story of marine life, by Joseph Conrad.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have just ready Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler's autobiography, entitled "Recollections of a Long Life," which is full of material of general interest, owing to the author's intimate acquaintance with many of the noted men of America and Europe. They will publish early in the fall "Reciprocity," by Professor J. Laurence Laughlin, head of the Department of Economics in Chicago University, and Professor H. Parker Willis, of Washington and Lee University; a "Life of Ulrich Zwingli," the Swiss patriot and reformer, by Samuel Simpson; "Help and Good Cheer," a gift book, by Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D.D.; "Valid Objections to So-Called Christian Science," by Rev. Andrew F. Underhill; "The Rolfe Shakespeare," in limp leather; and "Over the Black Coffee," compiled by Arthur Gray.

ALBERT BRANDT, Trenton, N. J., announces for the autumn a work dealing with the philosophy of beauty in all forms. The work will be entitled "The Gate Beautiful," being principles and methods in vital art education, and will contain hundreds of charts and reproductions of famous pictures, besides two elaborate color charts. It represents the ripe fruition of a lifetime of trained study, travel and observation by the author, Professor John Ward Stimson, who was long director of art education at the Metropolitan Museum and of the Artist-Artisan Institute, of New York. The work will appear in two editions, one on thick paper, bound in cloth, the other will be printed on thinner paper and bound in paper covers, the purpose being to put it within the possible reach of the many thousands employed in the textile, tile, pottery, jewelry, smithing, and other creative American industries.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation "The Struggle for a Continent," in which Professor Pelham Edgar, of Victoria College, University of Toronto, with the aid of connecting notes gives in Francis Parkman's own language a continuous account of the struggle for the possession of the American continent, beginning with the colonization of Florida by the Huguenots in 1562, and culminating in the fall of Quebec in 1759. The volume includes five hundred pages, with maps, portraits of historical personages, and other illustrations. They will publish during the fall "The Shadow of the Czar," a story of adventure by a new English writer, John R. Carling; "With a Saucepan over the Sea," 600 quaint and delicious recipes used in the kitchens of foreign countries, compiled by Adelaide Keen; also, "Prayers, Ancient and Modern," by Mary W. Tileston, the compiler of "Daily Strength for Daily Needs."

TONNELÉ & Co., 30 East Twenty-first Street, New York, will publish early in October a volume of book-plate essays and pictures, entitled "Book-Plates of To-day," edited by Wilbur Macey Stone. The nucleus of the book will be the matter contained in the first number of the quarterly Artistic Book-Plates, the right to use which has been acquired by Messrs. Tonnelé. To this has been added an essay, "The Architect as a Book-plate Designer," by Willis Steell, special reference being made to the work of Mr. Thomas Tryon, of New York. This will be illustrated with ten examples of Mr. Tryon's designs, some of which will be printed in colors. The book will contain seven color plates in all. Lastly, the book will include lists, practically complete to date, of the work of over twenty prominent designers of book-plates. Among them will be found the work of Edwin D. French, Henry Osipov, Edmund H. New, D. Y. Cameron and Robert Anning Bell.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published a novel of life in Nebraska, by a new writer, Mrs. Elizabeth Higgins, entitled "Out of the West," which takes into account the conditions that gave rise to the Populist movement, and gives a faithful picture of the life of the small town, stranded on the edge of civilization, of which there were so many in the West some years ago, during that calamitous period. They have also just ready "Out-doorland," a book for children by Robert W. Chambers, the author of "Cardigan," with illustrations by Reginald Birch, seven of which are in color. They will publish shortly "The Reign of Queen Anne," by Justin McCarthy, an introductory volume to the author's histories of England, beginning with his "History of the Four Georges," etc.; "Winslow Plain," by Sarah P. McLean, a new story of New England life, by the author of "Cape Cod Folks," etc.; also, "In the Morning Glow," by Roy Rolfe Gilson, author of "When Love is Young," with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens.

JAMIESON-HIGGINS Co., Chicago, announce a volume of up-to-date nursery rhymes entitled "Yankee Mother Goose," by Benjamin Cobb and Miss Ella Brison, with a number of colored illustrations; a new issue of "Kids of Many Colors," which was so successful last year; "'2002,' Child Life One Hundred Years from Now," by Laura Dayton Fessenden and R. J. Campbell, fully illustrated; "A Round Robin," a collection of stories and poems for children by well-known authors, edited by Laura Dayton Fessenden, with 16 half-tone engravings; "Old Mother Hubbard," by Harry Kennedy and Charles Jerome Costello; also, "Moon Children," a delightful book for children by Laura Dayton Fessenden and R. J. Campbell. This firm is making an offer of $500 for the most original title, subject and general idea for a child's book. To the person offering the second best they will award $250, and to each of the next five they will award $50, making $1000 in all. The contest will close December 31 and the decision of the judges will be announced January 15, 1903.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly a volume of "Historical Essays and Reviews," by Dr. Mandell Creighton, sometime Bishop of London, edited by Louise Creighton; "The Study of the Gospels," by the Rev. J. Armitage Robinson, Canon of Westminster; and "A Christian Apologetic," by the Very Rev. Wilford L. Robbins, Dean of Albany, N. Y., two new volumes of the series of Handbooks for the Clergy, edited by Canon Robinson; a new and cheaper edition of "The Hexateuch According to the Revised Version," edited by J. E. Carpenter and G. Harford-Battersby; "The Great Mountains and Forests of South America," by Paul Fountain; "The Portraits of Julius Cæsar," a monograph, by Frank J. Scott; "The Characters of Theophrastus," newly translated by Charles E. Bennett and William A. Hammond, professors in Cornell University; "Text-Book of Electro-Chemistry," by Svante Arrhenius, translated by John McCrae; "The Analysis of Steel Works Materials," by Harry Brearley and Fred Ibbotson; also, "A College Manual of Rhetoric," by Charles Sears Baldwin, of Yale. They will bring out this month "In King's By-ways," a collection of stories, by Stanley J. Weyman, and "By the Ramparts of Jezreel," a romance of Jehu, King of Israel, by Arnold Davenport. In October they will publish "The Lord Protector," a story of Cromwell's time, by S. Levett Yeats; Andrew Lang's Christmas book for 1902, entitled "The Book of Romance," with eight colored plates and forty-four other illustrations; also, a new Golliwogg book, in which the clever authors follow the adventures of the Golliwoggs in an air ship.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation the authoritative "Life of William Ewart Gladstone," by John Morley; a new volume by Lafcadio Hearn entitled "Some Japanese Curios, with Sundry Cobwebs;" "The Splendid Idle Forties," a collection of stories of old California, by Gertrude Atherton; "The Four Feathers," a story by A. E. W. Mason, the author of "Miranda of the Balcony;" "The Grey Wig," a collection of short stories, by Zangwill, dealing with the London Ghetto; "A Waif of the Plains," the story of a child kidnapped when very young by Indians, by Frederic Remington, who also illustrates the book; "The Henchman," a novel of love and politics, by Mark Lee Luther; "Bayard's Courier," by B. K. Benson, author of "Who Goes There;" also, "The Children of the Frost," by Jack London, a series of stories dealing with the primitive folk of Alaska, Eskimos and Indians. Among the illustrated books which they have in press are several whose subjects will at once attract attention, and which will be particularly suitable for holiday gifts. Mrs. Alice Morse Earle's "Sun Dials and Roses of Yesterday;" Sir Gilbert Parker's "Quebec: The Place and the People;" Clifton Johnson's "New England and its Neighbors;" each of which is very sumptuously illustrated and handsomely bound. "Ancient Athens" is another finely illustrated work by Ernest Arthur Gardner, formerly director of the British School at Athens; it will be issued in uniform size and style with Mau's handsome work on "Pompeii: Its Life and Art," of which a new and cheaper edition is to appear. Both Mrs. Earle's book and Sir Gilbert Parker's will be issued also in limited large-paper editions. "Furniture of Olden Times," by Miss Frances C. Morse, illustrated with many reproductions of quaint and valuable pieces, will appeal to many readers of taste. It will be published also in a large-paper edition limited to one hundred copies. They also announce "An Illustrated History of English Literature," by Richard Garnett and Edmund Gosse, a feature of which will be the many rare facsimiles and portraits which it will contain.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have just brought out one of the most important literary ventures of the season—the Virginia edition of the works of Edgar Allan Poe. The text has been carefully revised by James A. Harrison, professor in the University of Virginia, upon the versions which last came under the author's eye, and the variant readings have been scrupulously recorded. Through the careful searching of the files of periodicals to which Poe contributed, a considerable addition, particularly under the head of criticism, has been made to the collected works of Poe, while these additions are in the main not merely due to editorial instinct—a test which has failed lamentably in the case of Thackeray's anonymous papers—but are attested by letters of Poe or his identifying initials in his own copies. In much of this work of text construction the editor has had access to copies corrected by Poe himself, while he has for the first time collected or printed a complete volume of letters. The works are distributed among seventeen volumes gotten up in two styles—the handy volume style, pocket size, (4x6 inches,) in cloth, limp leather and half calf boxed, and in library style, (5½x8½ inches,) in cloth and half calf. The first volume contains a new life of Poe, by Professor Harrison, and Poe's autobiography; volumes 2 to 6 contain the tales in their proper chronological order, with an introduction—"Poe's Place in American Literature"—by Hamilton W. Mabie; volume 7 contains the poems, based upon Poe's personal copy of his poems, giving emendations and corrections in the poet's handwriting, with an introduction by Dr. Charles W. Kent and textual notes by R. A. Stewart; volumes 8 to 13 contain Literary Criticism, nearly half of the text being new matter that has not seen the light of print since their original appearance; volumes 14 to 16 contain essays and miscellanies, including Poe's manuscript corrections of "Eureka," and several hitherto unpublished papers; and the 17th volume contains a new collection of letters. The volumes are fully indexed, and accompanied with photogravure frontispieces, including portraits and views. Both editions are printed from new plates on good paper and are attractively bound.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish late in October or early in November "A Sea Turn, and Other Matters," a collection of new short stories, by Thomas Bailey Aldrich; "The Heart of the Doctor," a love story of the Boston Italian quarter, by Mabel G. Foster; "Uncle Charley," a charming story of a little girl and her whimsical, lovable uncle, by Zephine Humphrey; "The Heritage," a story of Indian fighting in Ohio during the Revolution, by Burton Egbert Stevenson, librarian of the Chillicothe Public Library; an estimate of Longfellow by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, in the American Men of Letters Series; "George Rogers Clark," by Frederick J. Turner, in the Riverside Biographical Series; a Cambridge edition of the complete poems of Pope, edited by Henry W. Boynton; a humorous paraphrase of familiar fairy tales in verse, by Guy Wetmore Carryl, entitled "Grimm Tales Made Gay;" "A Pocketful of Posies," simple verse of childhood, by Abbie Farwell Brown; "The Champion," a present-day Southern story for boys, by Charles Egbert Craddock; "Three Little Marys," stories of little girls of Scotland, England and Ireland, by Nora A. Smith; a holiday edition of Kate Douglas Wiggin's "Penelope's Irish Experiences," with illustrations by Charles E. Brock; a new holiday edition of Thoreau's "Walden," with introduction by Bradford Torrey and twenty photographs of Concord scenes and persons; a "Handbook of the Birds of the Western United States," by Florence Merriam Bailey, with thirty-three full-page plates by Fuertes; "Aid to the Study of Dante," by Charles A. Dinsmore, which contains considerable quotations from the most important Dante commentators; "Moliere," an attractive literary study of the foremost of French dramatists, by Leon H. Vincent; "The Physiological Aspects of the Liquor Problem," the result of invaluable and painstaking scientific research by famous American specialists, edited by Dr. J. S. Billings; the first part of a work entitled "Trees and Shrubs," a description, by Charles Sprague Sargent, of new or little-known ligneous plants such as would flourish in the gardens of the United States and Europe, with illustrations from drawings by C. E. Faxon; also, "A Study of Prose Fiction," a discussion of the outlines of fiction, the outcome of a course of lectures at Princeton, by Bliss Perry, the editor of the Atlantic Monthly.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—The Southern Book Company has filed a petition for a charter in the Superior Court here. It is to be capitalized at $250,000. The company is said to be the outcome of the movement in the South to secure text-books that deal with the war of 1860-'64 from a Southern point of view.

BATH, N. Y.—Lang's Central Bookstore was sold at auction to Davidson & Harper, of Cooperstown, for $2500. Lang, as reported last week, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, and the stock was sold by Trustee McMaster. The stock and fixtures inventoried at about $3700. The new firm took possession at once.

BOSTON, MASS.—Rockwell & Churchill, the widely-known printing house, has made an assignment.

DENISON, IA.—F. J. Gable has been succeeded by H. A. Carpenter.

GREAT FALLS, MONT.—A. E. Caulfield has bought out the business of Flaherty & Joyce.

IRVINGTON, N. Y.—William H. Gledhill has gone into voluntary bankruptcy.

NEW YORK CITY.—M. A. Gropper has purchased the book business of Ludwig Kölner at 78 Fourth Avenue.

SHERMAN, TEX.—Hugh Perry has been succeeded by Richardson & Sanders.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

EW In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

EW Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Publish To-day

BRET HARTE'S WORKS

Riverside Edition. With Portraits. 16 vols., 12mo, $24.co. (Sold only in sets.)

This edition is based on the collection of Bret Harte's works prepared in 1897, and enriched by introductions and a glossary prepared by Mr. Harte himself. It is much enlarged by the inclusion of later work, and is the only uniform edition.

LOCKHART'S SCOTT

Cambridge Edition. With 11 photogravure illustrations. 5 vols., 8vo, $10.00.

The edition of the classic now presented is made particularly valuable by the fact that it is based upon a large amount of important material concerning both Scott's life and Lockhart's which has appeared since the work was first published. It has been edited with the utmost skill and the most painstaking, scholarly care, and contains many extremely interesting notes of marked importance.

WALDEN

By HENRY D. THOREAU.

New one-volume Holiday Edition. With thirty photogravure illustrations, and an introduction by Bradford Torrey. 12mo, $3.00.

THE CHAMPION

By CHARLES EGBERT CRADDOCK. With a frontispiece. 12mo, $1.20, net. Postage, 10 cents.

A book for boys, with the swift play of action and abundance of interest which characterize all of this author's works.

THE MASQUE OF JUDGMENT

By WILLIAM VAUGHN MOODY. 12mo, $1.50.

Mr. Moody's reputation as a poet is already so firm and so evidently widening that the reissue of this dramatic poem, which represents his longest flight, will be welcome to many critics and lovers of verse. An uncut edition of 150 copies, $1.50, net.

To be Published September 20th

THE RIGHT PRINCESS.

By CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM

Author of "Miss Pritchard's Wedding Trip," "A West Point Wooing," etc. 12mo, $1.50.

Much attention is being shown by the press, as well as the public, in Mrs. Burnham's new book. The fact that it deals with Christian Science, and is written by an author of high distinction, should give it an important place among Fall books. The story is one with much episode and action, and will prove of charm and interest.

It is the one great American Encyclopædia, new text, new type, new illustrations. There is nothing in this country comparable with it. Its only peers are the great German Encyclopædias.

A LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE, ANCIENT and MODERN

Every topic of human knowledge or investigation from the world's beginning to the present day, is presented in clear, succinct, accurate, impartial, and popular statement. Art, science, history, biography, religion, discovery, government, and so on for a Hundred Departments, are treated by specialists who are recognized authorities. One alphabetical arrangement embraces the entire field of subjects, making them instantly accessible for the busy man, student or general reader. There are more than 1,000 full-page illustrations, colored plates, maps, and charts, besides hundreds of text illustrations.

SILAS H. BERRY, Librarian Y. M. C. A., New York: "I have not during the past ten years seen an Encyclopædia that I was willing to recommend to our association libraries until Vol. I. of the NEW INTERNATIONAL came to my attention. You have, I believe, made an entirely new Encyclopædia, supplying a real need in the book world."

MRS. CRAIGIE'S NEW NOVEL

LOVE AND THE SOUL HUNTERS

By JOHN OLIVER HOBBS

Author of "The Gods, Some Mortals, and Lord Wickenham," "The Herb Moon," "School for Saints," "Robert Orange," etc., etc.

IN this new novel Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes) has made, according to her own statement, the great effort of her life. It is the most brilliant creation of an author whose talent and versatility have surprised readers and critics in both Europe and America for several years.

"There is much that is worth remembering in her writings."—Mail and Express, New York.

"More than any other woman who is now writing, Mrs. Craigie is, in the true manly sense, a woman of letters. She is not a woman with a few personal emotions to express; she is what a woman so rarely is—an artist."—The Star, London.

12mo, Cloth. Price, $1.50.

MRS. KINGSLEY'S NEW NOVEL

THE NEEDLE'S EYE

By FLORENCE MORSE KINGSLEY

Author of "Titus," "The Transfiguration of Miss Philura," "Prisoners of the Sea," "Stephen," etc.

"THE Needle's Eye" is a remarkable story of modern American life—not of one phase, but of many phases, widely different and in startling contrast. The scenes alternate between country and city. The pure, free air of the hills, and the foul, stifling atmosphere of the slums; the sweet breath of the clover fields, and the stench of crowded tenements are equally familiar to the hero in this novel. The other characters are found in vine-covered cottages, in humble farmhouses, in city palaces, and in the poorest tenements of the slums. Many of the situations in the novel are exceedingly dramatic. Others sparkle with genuine humor. This is a story to make people laugh, and cry, and think.

CHICAGO

HERE is a book, by a new author and published by a new house, that has achieved instantaneous success. It has been cordially received by critics and reading public alike.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, in a review of the book, said :

"Stillman Gott is a 'rural philosopher,' just as his prototypes were, full of dry, droll sayings, witty stories, and quaint expressions. Generous to a fault, lovable and kind beyond words, he is one of those characters we cannot have too much of either in fiction or in real life. It is a pleasure to know Stillman Gott, and the reader will welcome him into American fiction to take his place alongside of David Harum and Eben Holden."

Besides being a good story, the book is well and handsomely bound. The print is clear and the paper is especially fine. Both from the literary and the mechanical standpoint the book is calculated to "wear well."
